

CONNECTING WITH YOUR SENSUAL GODDESS

Society tasks women to be caring, beautiful, and sensual. But when they invest in feeling good about themselves, indulging their sensuality, or fulfilling their own hopes and dreams, they're often mocked and discouraged. So they can become disconnected from their inner core, lose their joie de vie, start to question their self-worth, and stop making the time to nurture their sensuality.

Furthermore, the media poses impossible and inaccurate standards, making women become extremely self-critical, so they can sell them remedies. But those never work, because it isn't about emulating the latest fad around what we're supposed to look like; it's about honoring what's already inside us, programmed through millennia. Once we can do that, everything falls into place. It's about having the right mindset – nothing else matters.

A sensual goddess ensures that she embraces her authentic self, loves her body exactly as it is, connects with the sensuality that's in her design, fulfils her needs and desires, leads an empowered life, and moves to her own rhythm. And then, if she choses to let a lover into her inner sanctum, she has the tools to bring her A game, to attract and seduce in the most mind-blowing ways. She's the most enchanting seductress and lover, and she knows how to bring her sexy on to captivate anyone; but she's never enslaved to a lover who's unhealthy for her.

She embodies power, sensuality, deliberation, and she moves through life gracefully and unapologetically. She never questions herself, never puts herself or anyone else down, never compares herself to others, and never puts up with any mistreatment, because she knows that those things will take away from her living life to the fullest, on her own terms.

Let the world be your playground, and every sensual act a service to your inner sex goddess. Be mindful. Every time you make love, invest in the other person as if it's your first time together, and invest in yourself as if it's your last, so you can be fully present to satisfy that hunger in both directions. Don't ever take any part of that for granted; make it special with the right mindset, every single time.

If you genuinely hunger for someone and want to ravish them, most people wouldn't be able to resist being the object of your desire, particularly if you show them how badly you want them. But most doesn't mean everyone, so you must never push when the other party is either disinterested or unavailable. Besides, why would you want to pursue someone who doesn't want you anyways?

When a woman is turned on, she can catch anyone's gaze and mesmerize them. She walks slowly and deliberately, she stops time, she savours every moment, because her sensuality is her heart and soul. No one dare rush her; why would they want to, because they're enjoying the experience of her. And that's the essence of a sensual goddess.

But you need to awaken her and then create the best version of yourself with her help, even if it feels hard. It is in you – you were designed for it – don't let anybody make you feel otherwise. Start to dress the part, engage your sensuality on a regular basis, look for sensuality in everything you do, and master the art of flirting and the laws of attraction to become the most captivating woman. If your marriage has gone stale, you can make your partner fall harder for you than ever before. It's about nurturing the right mindset and developing the delicious skillset that nobody could resist. Don't let anything hold you back.

If you answer “yes” to any one of the following questions, it's time to transform your life.

- Do you fear you're not enough?
- Do you feel unworthy and define your worth through others?
- Are you looking for love in the wrong places because you don't love yourself enough?
- Are you trying to be someone else, because you're dissatisfied with who you are?
- Do you feel undesirable, instead of having the sexual confidence to bring it on?
- Are you unable to nurture your sensuality and enjoy it to the fullest?

A sensual goddess can confidently answer all those questions with a resounding “no”! If you can't do the same, wipe the slate clean, set aside your misconceptions and inhibitions, and give yourself the permission to become the delicious creature that you were meant to be!
